ARCHITECTS ARE PLANNING TO MAKE ST. LOUIS "THE CITY BEAUTIFUL"

PROPOSED PLAZA ALONG OLIVE STREET AND LINDELL AVENUE.

Plan suggested by G. A. G. Brueggeman, draftsman employed by the Board of Education, and submitted in the architectural contest for schemes for beautifying St. Louis.

begun drawing plans in the contest for schemes to beautify St. Louis. The committee, of which Ernest J. Russell is chairman, completed a schedule for the contract

The first drawing submitted was from G. A. G. Brueggeman, who is in the employ of the Board of Education, His idea is for the city to acquire enough property to build a plaza along Olive street and Lindell avenue west of where these streets intersect, between Channing and Grand avenues. The plan contemplates a dia-mond shaped grass plot, with a fountain in the center, stautary and perhaps smaller parks surrounding the diamond. "When Forest Park was purchased some persons thought the scheme was foolish city extravagant," said Mr. Brueggeman. "But look what it is worth to the public to-day. The same proposition holds good with such a location as that I have chosen for a plaza.

"At present the property can be bought at a reasonable figure. As everyone knows, the phenomenal growth of St. Louis is causing the city to expand westward. In a few years channing and Grand avenues will be central. Would it not be wise for the city to take in several blocks in that locality, make a park and retain enough space for civic buildings of various kinds which will be needed?" Mr. Brueggeman's essoclates in the Architectural Club answer his
